Southern Railway System Textile Directory

THIS directory of textile manufacturing plants in territory served by Southern Railway System includes all of the plants completed and put in operation up to January 1, 1927. It also lists all of the new plants and important additions to plants under construction on that date.

The edition of 1926 listed 1,043 concerns operating 13,178,395 spindles, 260,241 looms, and 47,736 knitting machines. This edition lists 1,080 plants of all kinds in operation January 1, 1927, operating 13,397,047 spindles, 261,352 looms, and 49,567 knitting machines. During the year, including those under construction at the end of the year, 180 additions were made to existing plants.

In all of the southern states there are now 17,936,264 spindles, or 47.95 per cent of all the machinery engaged in spinning cotton in the United States. The continued southward movement of the cotton textile industry is shown by the fact that there was a net increase of 189,140 spindles in the south and a net decrease of 656,604 spindles in all other states in 1926.

Heretofore New England has led all other parts of the United States in cotton manufacturing equipment. On January 1, 1927, there were 184,738 more spindles in place in the mills in the cotton-producing states than in the New England mills. The South has led in spindle activity for several years and has now achieved leadership in manufacturing capacity.

The growth of the southern textile industry and the increased consumption of cotton in southern mills as compared with other parts of the United States are graphically shown by the diagrams on the following page.

COTTON SPINDLES IN UNITED STATES MILLS—YEARS 1880—1926

MILLS IN COTTON GROWING STATES ■

MILLS IN ALL OTHER STATES ▨

The above diagram shows the growth of the cotton textile industry in the south as compared with other parts of the United States since 1880. The solid black columns represent the number of spindles in mills in cotton-producing states and the shaded columns the number in the mills in all other states.

It will be noted that since 1880, when the cotton-producing states had only a very small proportion (5.27 per cent) of the total spindles in the United States, there has been a steady, almost uniform, increase from year to year, and that the number of spindles in other states reached a maximum in 1922 and has shown a decrease in each subsequent year. The net decrease since 1922 outside of the south has been 1,512,965 spindles, as compared with a net increase of 1,971,883 in the south in the same period.

COTTON TAKEN BY UNITED STATES MILLS—RUNNING BALES—YEARS 1880—1926

MILLS IN COTTON GROWING STATES ■

MILLS IN ALL OTHER STATES ▨

The above diagram shows the consumption of cotton in southern mills since 1880, as compared with the consumption in the mills in all other states. It will be noted that the consumption of cotton in southern mills exceeded consumption in all other states in 1911 and in each subsequent year.

In 1926 southern mills took 4,757,902 bales, or 71.16 per cent of the total cotton consumption of the United States, while mills in all other states took only 1,928,562 bales, or 28.84 per cent of the cotton consumed. The mills of New England, with 17,751,526 spindles, took only 1,611,291 bales, or 24.09 per cent of the cotton consumed. This is accounted for, in part, by the fact that in 1926 the southern mills, with 17,936,264 spindles in place, operated 61,520,349,555 spindle-hours, while the mills in other states, with 19,468,208 spindles in place, operated 35,480,024,187 spindle-hours. In other words, southern mills, with 47.95 per cent of the spindles, worked 63.42 per cent of the total spindle-hours in that year.

Southern Railway Development Service

THE Southern Railway Development Service is maintained by Southern Railway System to promote the development of the territory served by its lines in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Northern Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Southeastern Louisiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Southern Indiana and Southern Illinois.

The purpose of the Southern Railway Development Service is Service to You.

If you want a manufacturing site close to sources of supplies of raw materials, convenient to coal or hydro-electric power, and where labor conditions are good;

If you are looking for a home where winters are mild and summer heat is moderate;

If you want a farm or orchard where moderate-priced lands, long growing seasons, fertile soils and easily accessible markets contribute to profits;

The Southern Railway Development Service will help you find it.

There is no charge for this service. It is based on the sound business proposition that a railroad can prosper only as a result of the prosperity of the people served by it.

It is to our interest to help you find the best location possible.

We want to locate you where you can succeed, for if your business is to be profitable to the railroad, it must first be profitable to you.

Correspondence in regard to locations in the territory served by Southern Railway System will have prompt and efficient attention.

J. C. WILLIAMS, Manager,
Southern Railway Development Service,
Washington, D. C.

The Map Tells The Story

The opposite map shows in a graphic way the present development of the textile industry in territory served by Southern Railway System, also its relation to the coal fields of the south and the electric power transmission lines.

Each dot on this map represents 25,000 spindles, small circles being used to represent less than 25,000 spindles. It is impossible, on a map of this size, especially in the more congested parts of the territory, to show all of the towns at which there are textile plants, and, to some extent, groups of dots and circles include those located at two or more points. The map shows the general geographical location of the textile industry. Detailed information as to each city and town and as to each plant will be found in the tables in which the plants are listed.

The dots and circles represent 13,397,047 textile spindles of all kinds, of which 13,234,361 are cotton spindles, representing 73.79 per cent of all the cotton spindles in the cotton-growing states. The total spindles shown include 121,486 in woolen and worsted mills and 41,200 in silk mills.

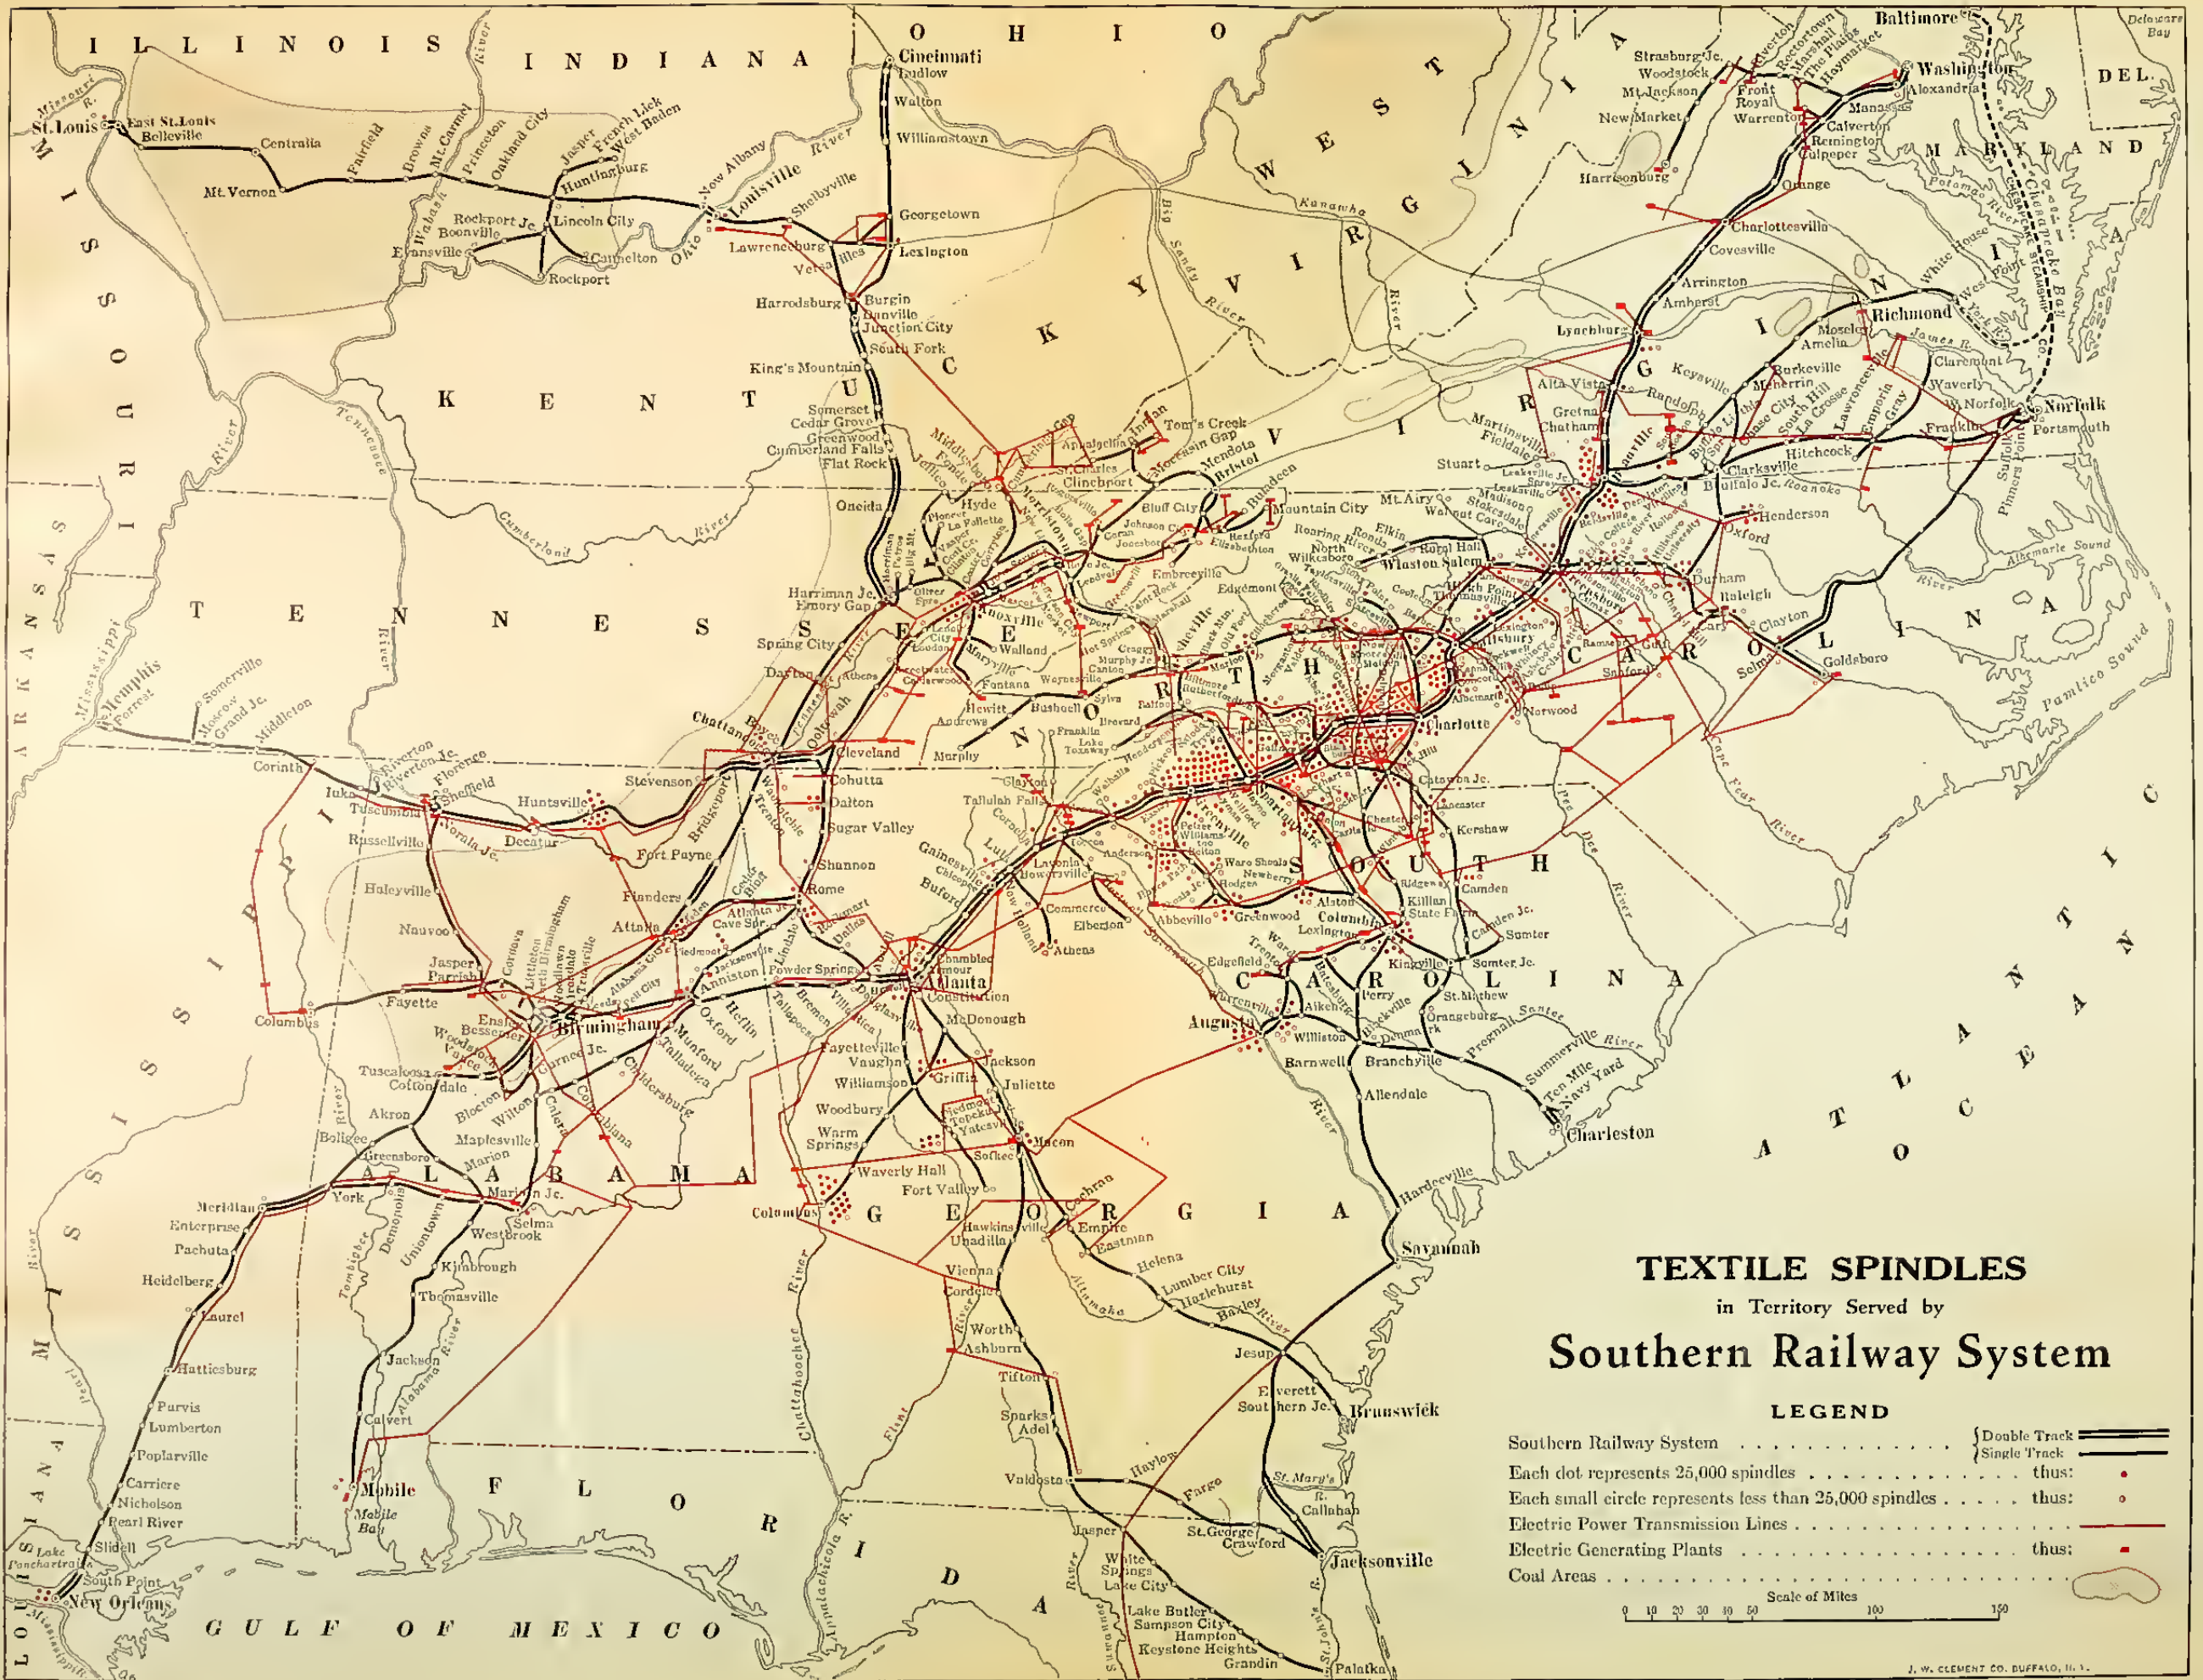

Where Cotton Manufacturing is Profitable

A glance at the map will show that the geographical location of Southern Railway is most advantageous for the concentration of cotton from all parts of the cotton belt. It also shows that territory served by the System is well located with reference to coal for power and heat. Due to the shorter haul from the mine, coal delivered on Southern mill sidings is cheaper in proportion to power produced than either coal or fuel oil in the New England and North Atlantic states.

As is shown by the map, the System traverses and surrounds the Southern Appalachian and Piedmont sections containing the principal hydro-electric power developments and opportunities of the south, and the territory is covered by a network of power transmission lines. The transmission lines of all of the principal companies are inter-connected, forming a great super-power zone in which deficiencies of power in any one locality are supplied by surpluses from other localities. The electric power situation is constantly being strengthened, not only by bringing in new hydro-electric powers, but also by the construction of large steam power plants, supplementing water power and maintaining service during periods of low water.

Climatic conditions are unexcelled. Winters are short and mild. Outdoor operations can be carried on practically every day in the year. Snow and ice do not impede traffic or prevent employes from reaching their work on time. The influences of the Appalachian Mountain ranges, the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico upon the climate are such that summer heat is not excessive. In much of the territory hot nights in summer are unknown.

Labor is efficient and adaptable. The white population is descended almost entirely from colonial stock, 94.98 per cent of the white people in the territory being of native parentage on both sides, as compared with 55.82 per cent for all other states.

Hauling Cotton to the Mill and Cotton Goods to the Market

Taking into account its tonnage of raw cotton and of cotton mill products, Southern Railway System is the largest carrier of cotton in the world.

Accompanying the rapid growth of the textile industry, and especially the present-day development of dyeing, bleaching and finishing in the South, there has been built up a widespread distribution of cotton goods directly from the mills.

The management of Southern Railway System has recognized the opportunity and the obligation thus created for an efficient system of assembling and distributing textile mill products. Textile mill products are assembled daily at Spencer Transfer (Salisbury, N. C.), at Hayne Transfer (Spartanburg, S. C.), at Inman Transfer (Atlanta, Ga.) and at John Sevier Transfer (Knoxville, Tenn.), where they are loaded into package cars and forwarded on special trains scheduled for continuous movement to Southern Railway terminals. Daily through trains operate from John Sevier Transfer (Knoxville, Tenn.) and carry through cars of cotton goods to Cincinnati, Louisville, St. Louis, Memphis, and through these gateways without transfer to Chicago, Ill., St. Paul, Minn., Minneapolis, Minn., Kansas City, Mo., Cheyenne, Wyo., Springfield, Mo., Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, Ohio, and other points in the North, Northwest and West. Inman Transfer (Atlanta, Ga.) has similar operation including cars loaded to the Southwest to and through New Orleans.

Mill products loaded daily at Spencer Transfer (Salisbury, N. C.) are handled in solid through trains to the East via Potomac Yards, all rail, and via Pinners Point (Norfolk, Va.), rail and water. From the South Carolina section there is a daily package car service to Charleston, S. C., by which route, in connection with the Clyde Steamship Line, expeditious rail and water service is provided to New York and the East.

Particularly good facilities are provided for shipments of textile mill products direct to Cuba by through package cars loaded at Spencer Transfer and Inman Transfer direct to Havana via the Key West and Havana Car Ferry.

Write to J. C. Williams, Manager, Southern Railway Development Service, Washington, D. C., for a copy of Southern Railway System Package Car Directory.
